Foreword

When the oceans first swept out upon
The barren sands
And the winds first whispered
In the branches of trees
Man was conceived in time.
Struggling against the oceans
And the winds,
He drew upon his inner spirit
And the human mind was born.

June 1966

Dear Friends,

It was not too long ago that you and I arrived at this wonderland of Monroe, aglow with the excitement of a new adventure. In these three years you have lived an experience, enjoyed an opportunity, and achieved a distinction. In these three years, you have developed attachments of friendship and acquired treasured memories.

Now you must look forward to new challenges and new promises. The years ahead will test your training, your values, and your resolution. How well you succeed will be influenced by the time and interest you devote to concentrated learning and dedicated performance. You can hope to realize your aspirations if you are committed to disciplined effort.

And, lest we forget, success is not merely the comforts and luxuries money can buy; success is not the self-gratification of self-interest and self-esteem. To be so limited in outlook is to discard the ideals and virtues that time has fashioned. "No man is an island, entire of itself"; "Am I my brother's keeper?" -- these are imperatives of social purpose. Therefore, we must judge success by the deeds of compassion and of valor for our fellow man. The stature of a man must be evaluated by the standard of generous service to others. Upon such principles of social endeavor have glorious societies flourished through the ages.

Yes, it was not too long ago that we were welcomed to Monroe. Three years seem like only yesterday but these years have seen you grow up into young women and men. I do expect that you leave with new hopes to inspire and new successes to venture. You take with you my best wishes.

Cordially yours,

Oscar Dombrow

English Department

Mrs. Anne Harris, chairman

The English department of James Monroe, under the guidance of Mrs. Anne Harris, seeks to develop the creative spirit of the student by introducing him to various forms of literature which pose vital and basic questions about life and human values. English courses in the junior year give qualified students an opportunity to specialize in drama, creative writing, journalism, or public speaking. In addition to its regular course of study, the department offers an elective course in world literature in the spring term and a creative writing workshop. The department also sponsors all of James Monroe's publications.

This year, a new speech program was introduced and was well-received. In the fall term, all junior academic classes were speech-centered, and in the spring, the general classes received the benefit of this new program. For students for whom English is a second language, the department offers such courses as ESOL (English for Speakers of Other Languages) and elementary and advanced foreign accent classes.

Another experiment which was well-received this year was Mr. Laurence Fineman's full-length production of "You Can't Take It With You." In the past, the Drama Workshop had presented only selected portions of a play, so this innovation was a welcome treat indeed.

Like the other departments at James Monroe, the English department is striving to maintain the excellent standards to which it has always subscribed by adding to these standards as time and an ever-increasing student body dictate.

Social Studies Department

The record of his existence . . .
The expression of his inner soul

Above the entrance of James Monroe High School are inscribed the words of William Pitt: "Where law ends, tyranny begins." It is the aim of the social studies department to prevent tyranny from beginning by developing in students an understanding of government and of the democratic processes and ideals. Intrinsic in these ideals of democracy is an understanding of different cultures and ethnic groups. The department hopes to speed the progress of democracy by instilling in the student a respect for these different groups. Students are encouraged to express and develop their own opinions, and the teachers of the department are not shackled to teaching the opinions of the chairman or those of the Board of Education. They are given free rein over the presentation of curriculum, relating past to present by including in it the study of current events.

The courses given by the social studies department are adapted to meet the needs of all students. For students in the general course, greater emphasis is placed upon the development of the student's skills and his performance rather than on absorption of facts; particular emphasis is placed on reading skills in the sophomore general classes. This year, the problems in American democracy course is open to general students for the first time. The department believes that the problems studied in this course pertain to all citizens and should be open for study to all students because they are future citizens.

Time has changed the social studies department. It is now headed by a new chairman, Mr. Irwin Fleischner, who is spending the year becoming acquainted with James Monroe, the members of his department, and the students. Mr. Fleischner has expressed a desire to become familiar with the students and to identify with their needs and problems. He wants the members of his department to feel that they have a common goal: the education and development of the students. In attaining this goal, they are jointly seeking the solutions to the problems they encounter. Mr. Fleischner believes that there should be equal opportunity for all students, and that his department should help promote this. The social studies department of James Monroe is fostering its own "Great Society."

Through colors . . .

Throughtout time, across the entire world, one thing that has been universal in uniting mankind is art. Whether abstract or non-objective—in which a painting or drawing presents no factual representation—or realistic—in which actual interpretation of the subject is attempted—art has been and always will be an important force for communication.

Under the direction of Mr. Louis Wiener, Monroe's art department offers classes in the various fields of art. A student may, for example, take a course in the useful arts and learn to construct objects for everyday use, or he may elect the decorative arts and create objects of beauty rather than utility. Classes are mechanical drawing and graphic arts, including printing.

Of all the offerings, perhaps the two most popular are painting and sculpture. In the painting class, the student selects from a wide choice of materials—oils, water colors, pastels, or inks—and is taught the arrangement of line and color, selecting for emphasis those details of the subject that most interest him. Sculpture, on the other hand, is concerned primarily with the manipulation of wood, stone, bone, ivory, soap, clay and wax.

Whatever medium of art the student selects, he can feel certain he is learning a valuable lesson of life—one that will serve him as it has served mankind throughout the centuries.

Senior band.

One of the many highlights of Monroe is and always will be the music department which is headed by Mr. Irving Feirstein. The department consists of the Senior Choir under the excellent guidance of Mr. Ernest Warren, the girls' chorus, the orchestra, the band, and, of course, the dance band led by Mr. Emil Greenberg. This year a new group, the mixed chorus, was added to perk up the regular girls' and boys' choruses. From the very start, this promised to be a "swinging and singing" year, and indeed it was. The band and choruses outdid themselves as usual during our annual Winter Concert, and the choir performed more superbly than ever. Due to the few changes mentioned, the music department thus enabled even more students to understand and appreciate fine music. It will undoubtedly keep up this fine and gratifying work for as long as Monroe stands, and that, we hope, will be forever.

Mr. Martin Tanenbaum and Hebrew class.

The language department, under Mr. Aristide Masella, is seeking to scale six language barriers for James Monroe students. Mr. Masella's department believes that the study of French, Spanish, Italian, Hebrew, German and Chinese provides the student with valuable insight into these various countries' customs and histories, besides the actual mastery of a foreign tongue.

Language is an age-old communication by voice. Two of the oldest such communications are part of James Monroe's language program. They are the historical tongues of Hebrew and Chinese. Chinese is an especially unique subject because there is only one other high school in New York City that teaches it.

The Romance languages—French, Spanish, Italian—consist of most of the classes taught in the language department. It is the Spanish classes which are undergoing the greatest expansion with the promise of even more in the future. One of the programs instituted this year is the special class for the newly arrived Spanish-speaking students. The purpose of this class is to aid these pupils with their command of the English language under the auspices of the English and foreign language departments. The students attend a Spanish-speaking world history class as well as a course in world history conducted in English. The pupils are issued two sets of the same textbook, one in Spanish and the other in English. Recently, advanced classes have been established for the benefit of students with Spanish backgrounds.

The benefits that the student receives from Mr. Masella and his staff are immeasurable and aid him in his understanding of, and adjustment to, his time.

Guidance at James Monroe High School is an organized service designed to give systematic aid to pupils in making adjustments to the various demands which every student must eventually face—educational, vocational, moral, social, civic, and personal. The desire of our high school counselors is to serve the school by helping each child in his adjustment to life, by helping him to discover his abilities and aptitudes.

The two major aims of guidance are the discovery of individual differences, capacities, interests, and needs, and the application of this information to curricula and to activity planning. The guidance program is an organized effort to bring to the student those services which will assist him in developing in body, mind, and character to the limit of his individual capacity for growth.

Guidance helps pupils establish appropriate goals and develop plans for attainment of these goals; it supplies the motif for the weaving of a life. In this light, we feel that the guidance department of our school is performing one of the most valuable services available to the student.

Always a mainstay to the high school curriculum —indeed, to life itself—mathematics continues to climb in importance as James Monroe endeavors to keep up with the advances of our nuclear age. Under the guidance of Mr. Saul Landau, the mathematics department is increasing its already formidable array of courses for the mathematically inclined.

One such innovation is the institution of the mathematics team. With Mr. Paul Klarreich as its coach, the team is preparing itself for competition with other leading high schools in the city. Although it is newly formed, its members are very enthusiastic about its success and the mathematics team promises to be an exciting and stimulating addition to one of our most popular departments.

The accounting department of James Monroe, with Mr. Max Seelenfreund as its chairman, has changed with the times. Previously, accounting and mechandising were combined into one department; now, there are two, the accounting and business department and the distributive education department. In addition, there are many new business machines such as key punches, addressing machines and IBM machines. This department seeks to prepare its students for the business world, accomplishing this aim through experienced teachers who instruct students in the fundamentals of bookkeeping, merchandising, and business law.

Under a newly instituted program of advancement, the secretarial studies department, directed by Miss Patricia Milligan, aids the student in developing his secretarial skills through the utilization of improved methods of teaching and training. Modernization is playing a major role in this area.

Electric typewriters are increasing the student's proficiency, and the installation of electric calculators and switchboards is teaching him the use of modern, up-to-date equipment that he will encounter in today's business world. In addition, advanced typing classes are being offered this year which serve to further this program of advancement by refining those skills previously acquired.

To keep up with the pace of our era, another special class has been created—one in which non-English speaking students are introduced to the secretarial skills. Under the guidance of Miss Lourdes Travieso, foreign students are being taught to type—as well as to speak—in English in preparation for future work.

Through such innovations and as a result of its high standards, the secretarial studies department is winning deserved attention throughout Monroe for its launching of a program for advancement.

Mr. Paul Goldreich, chairman.

Progress is a permanent resident of the biology department at Monroe. Under the able leadership of Mr. Paul Goldreich, constant improvement and innovation have resulted in an ever-expanding spectrum of courses available to the biology student. Monroe is one out of only eight high schools in the city which includes in its courses this year the BSCS New York State experimental course in biology. A pre-technical biology course has also been developed to prepare qualified students who wish to pursue careers as laboratory technicians. A totally renovated biology laboratory, with separate tables and sinks for each student, has been completed this year, along with a project room for student activities and experiments outside the classroom, and a completely equipped dark room. With the increasing importance given to science in the modern world, the biology department is attempting, through its innovations, to keep in step with the times and be second to none in its scientific offerings.

The physical science department of James Monroe High School offers courses to meet the demands of our time, the space age. In order for pupils to gain knowledge of this age, Monroe has built new laboratories for earth science, physics, and chemistry, and instituted a new way of conducting electricity for the physics classes. The department also has new power outlets and new equipment for all the courses offered in its scope.

Years ago, Monroe's physical science department was crowded into a little corner of the fifth floor; now slowly, but surely, the department, under the guidance of its chairman Mr. Samuel Troik, is spreading out. We can be proud of Monroe's ability to adapt to the advances of time as evidenced by its new physical science department.

The boys' health education department of James Monroe, with Stephen Ray at the helm, is different from any other department in the school. Besides offering many opportunities for those who desire to excel, it sponsors all the boys' teams. In class, the boys must run the gauntlet: barbells, parallel bars, tumbling, handball, and the new pegboards, all designed to improve endurance and to promote fair play. Throughout the term, the boys are privileged to hear of outside opportunities in which athletics may prove of value from men of the armed forces and from scouts from colleges across the nation. In May, the boys go through the rugged Marine physical fitness test, and, on the whole, the boys prove themselves quite capable of self-defense.

Under the direction of Mrs. Norma Applebaum, the girls' health education department presents a program of physical education to all Monroe girls. The department has added a new afternoon club, gymnastics, for those girls especially interested in this area.

Long an outstanding feature of James Monroe's program of physical health, the Leaders class is designed for students who are capable athletes and who are also qualified for school service. This class plays competitive games within the school.

One of the most popular classes in the department is Miss Patricia Ofshe's modern dance class, composed of girls who enjoy modern jazz and who are adept at dancing. This year a "Play Day" extravaganza was presented with members from Monroe and several other schools participating. We were privileged to have as our guests talented dancers from Lincoln Center to perform for us. Besides these activities, the modern dance class participates in our annual Spring Show, one of the highlights of any year.

The various classes in the health education department are designed to prepare the graduates of James Monroe for life in an increasingly competitive world, surely a necessity if we are to keep abreast of the times.

ATHLETICS

Some of the timeless highlights of any year at James Monroe occur on the athletic field; this year was no exception. Many an exciting afternoon was enjoyed by both spectator and participant.

Mr. Bob Bazzini's swimming team swam to an impressive 7-1 win-loss record, the most successful season in Monroe's history. It was a real team effort that was sparked by graduating seniors Woody Diaz, Ken Grabowski, Ken Sambolin, Joe Colao and Alan Carena.

On the gridiron, we experienced a disappointing 1-6 record. Although the football season was somewhat bleak, there were, nevertheless, many exciting moments. All-city candidate Joe Amaturo provided us with many thrills as did graduating seniors James Peters, Steven Burg, Mike Padilla, Stuart Weg, and David Cohen.

Our baseball team boasted three of the top athletes in the senior class, Ellsworth "Shotty" Jones, Marco Macaluso, and Billy Mercado. Both Shotty and Mac are three-year men whose able pitching has kept the Eagles in the forefront of Monroe athletics. Billy's speed and fielding ability made him an outstanding asset to a strong squad.

Basketball is still on an upward trend at Monroe. From Coach Sam Tolkoff's hoopster squad, Sam Chandler was the boy who led his teammates to victory. He led the team in scoring with 292 points in 18 games and has been placed on the Bronx All-Star squad and the All-Scholastic team.

In tennis this year, it was Stuart Sabal who was the inspirational leader of the team. Although small in size, Stuart is tall in competitive spirit, and in his junior year, he racked up a 9-0 record against such stiff competition as the boys from Science and Columbus.

Baseball

Mr. Bazzini, about to be baptized!

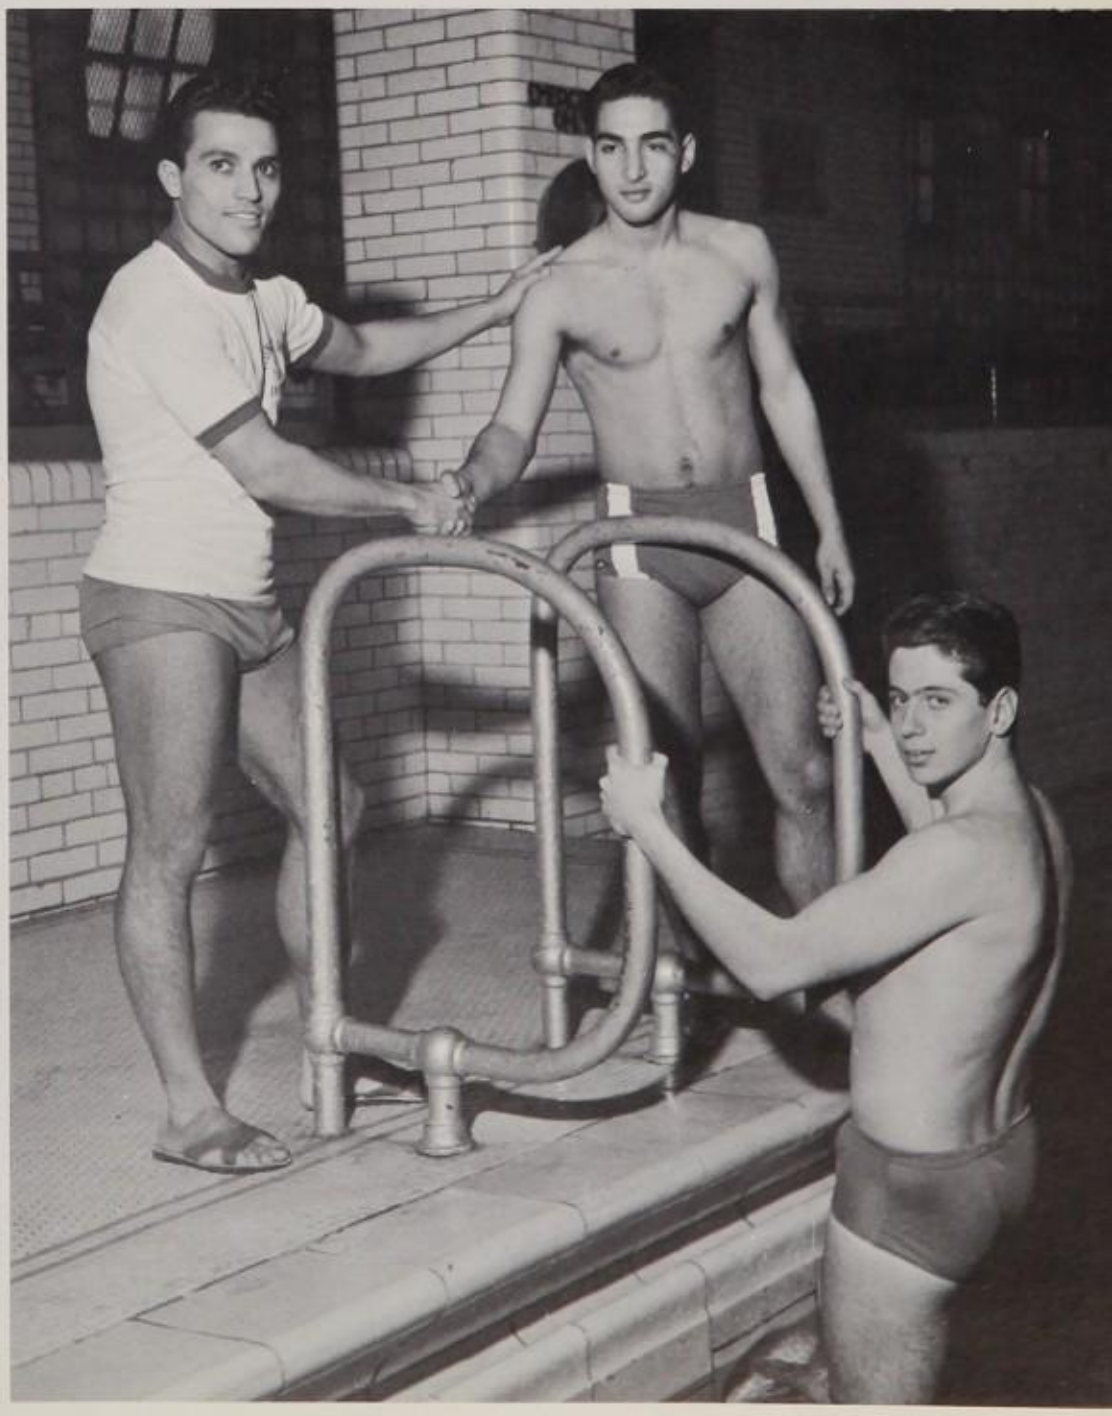
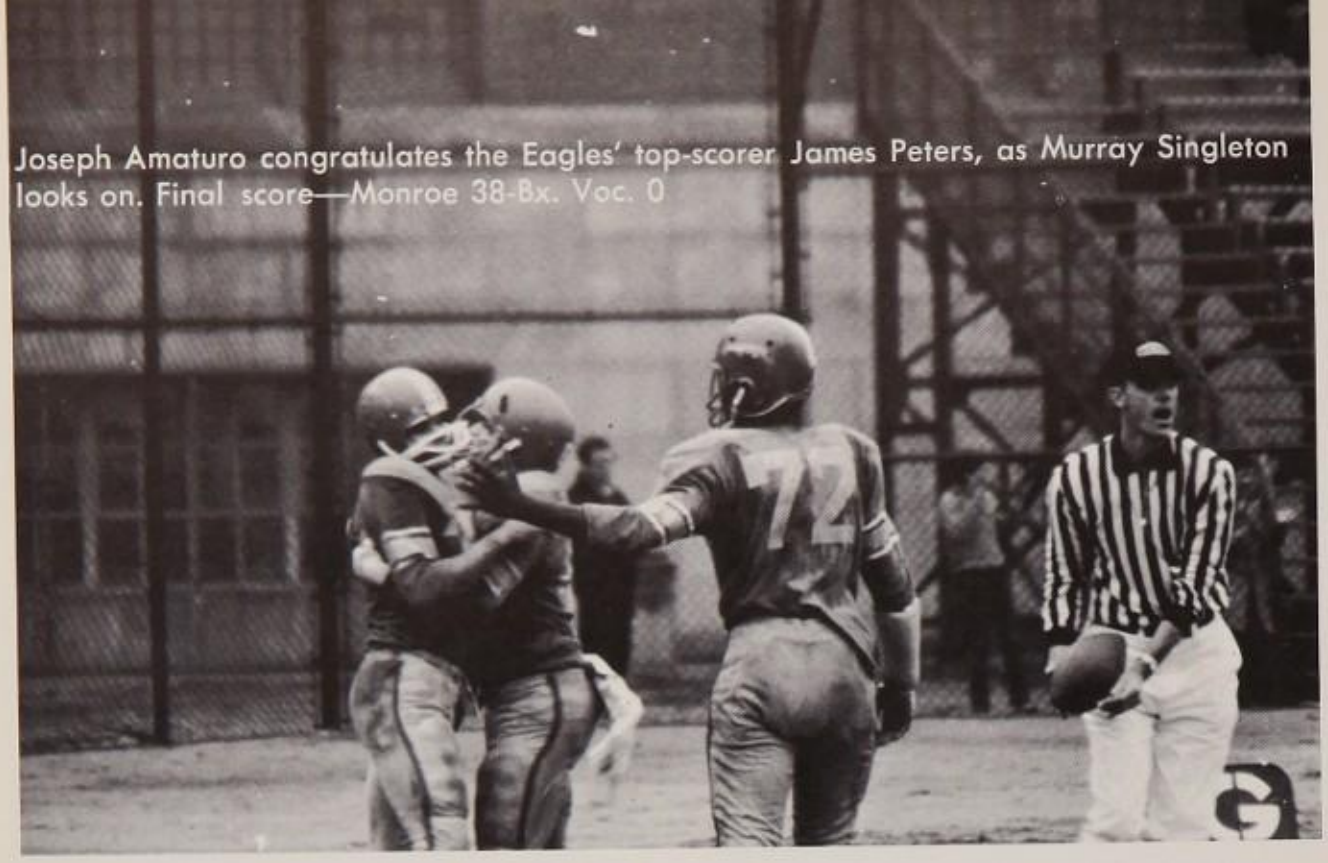
SWIMMING TEAM—First row: Mr. Robert Bazzini, coach, Neil Kusherman, Richard Cusack, Tony Gonzalez, Jose Santiago, Benjamin Bernier, Mark Wolpinsky, Richard Johnson. Second row: Mike Cortiella, Clarence Smith, Miles Thaler, Kenny Sambolin, Alan Carena, Stuart Fishkin, Mike Simonetti. Third row: Tony Cancel, Ruben Montanez, Kenny Grabowski, Angel Cruz, Eddie Rothstein, Woody Diaz, Kuen Chin, Donald Costa.

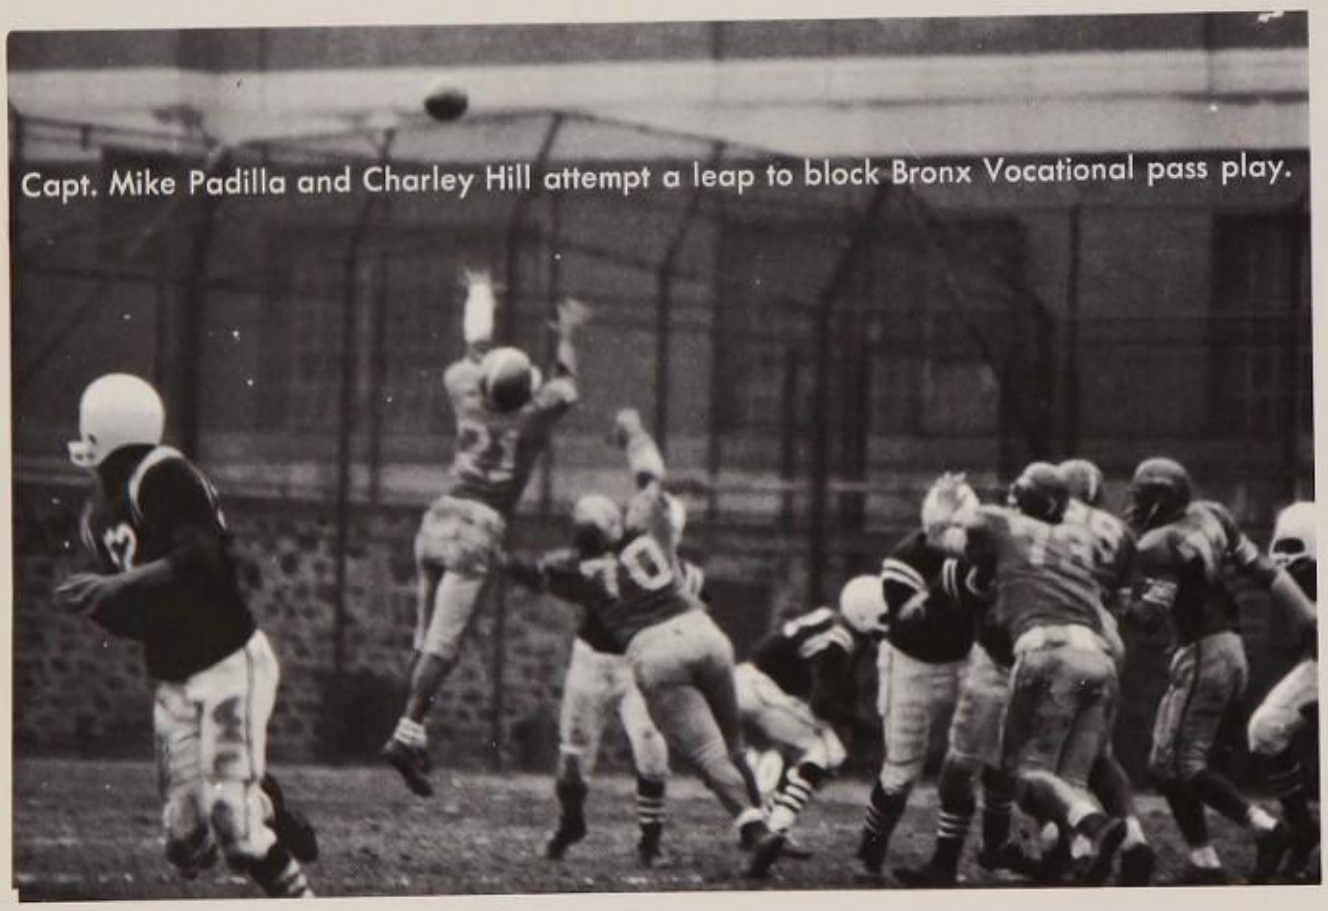
Swimming

Mr. Robert Bazzini, coach, Co-Captains Woody Diaz and Ken Grabowski.

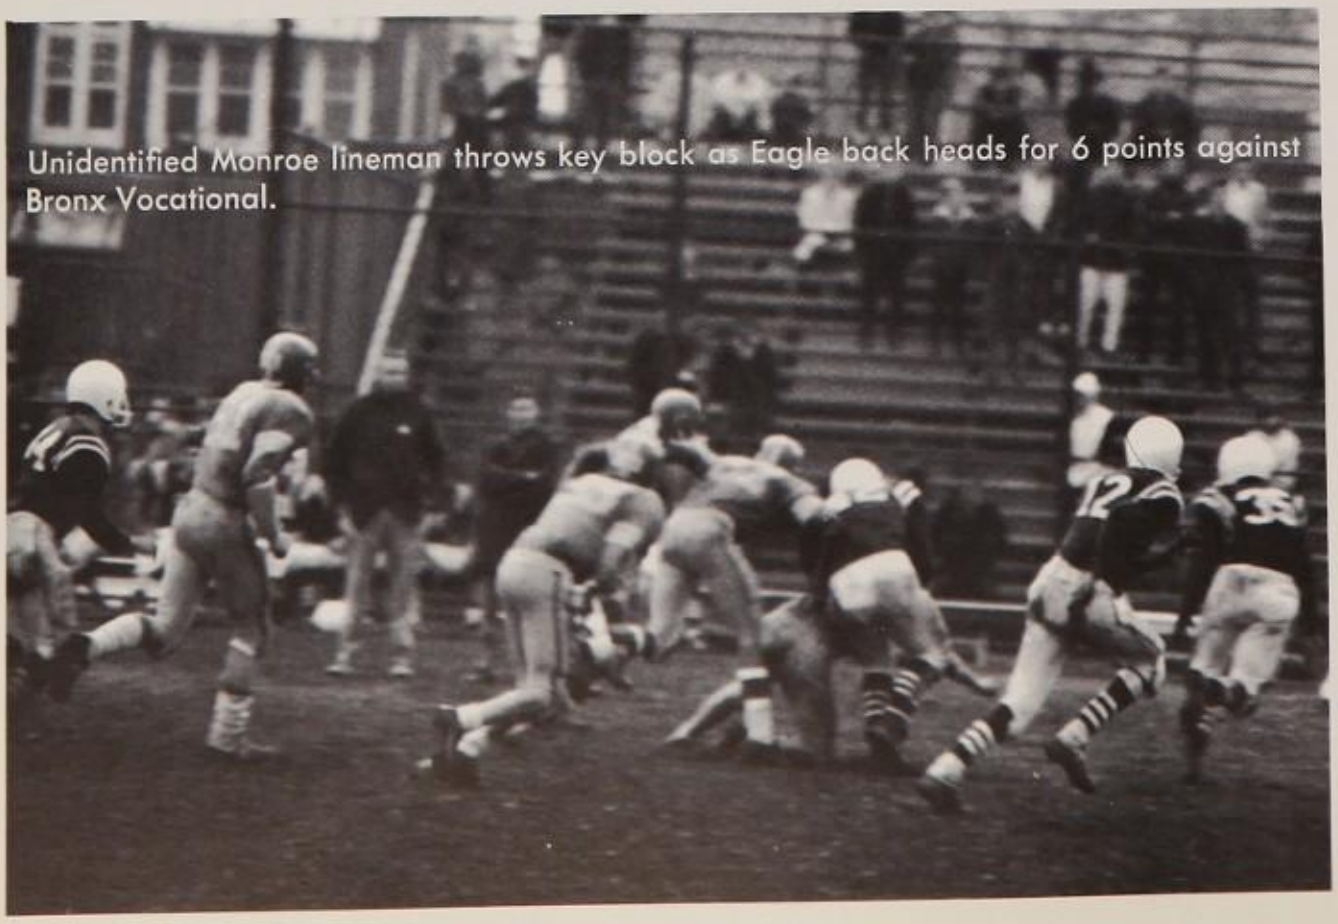




Joseph Amaturo congratulates the Eagles' top-scorer James Peters, as Murray Singleton looks on. Final score—Monroe 38-Bx. Voc. 0



Capt. Mike Padilla and Charley Hill attempt a leap to block Bronx Vocational pass play.



Unidentified Monroe lineman throws key block as Eagle back heads for 6 points against Bronx Vocational.

This was a year
so filled with events, emotions, experiences that it seemed a fulfillment, a completion
till we realized
it was only a springboard, a starting place, a point for beginning.

So we learn that every fulfillment is also a new beginning.

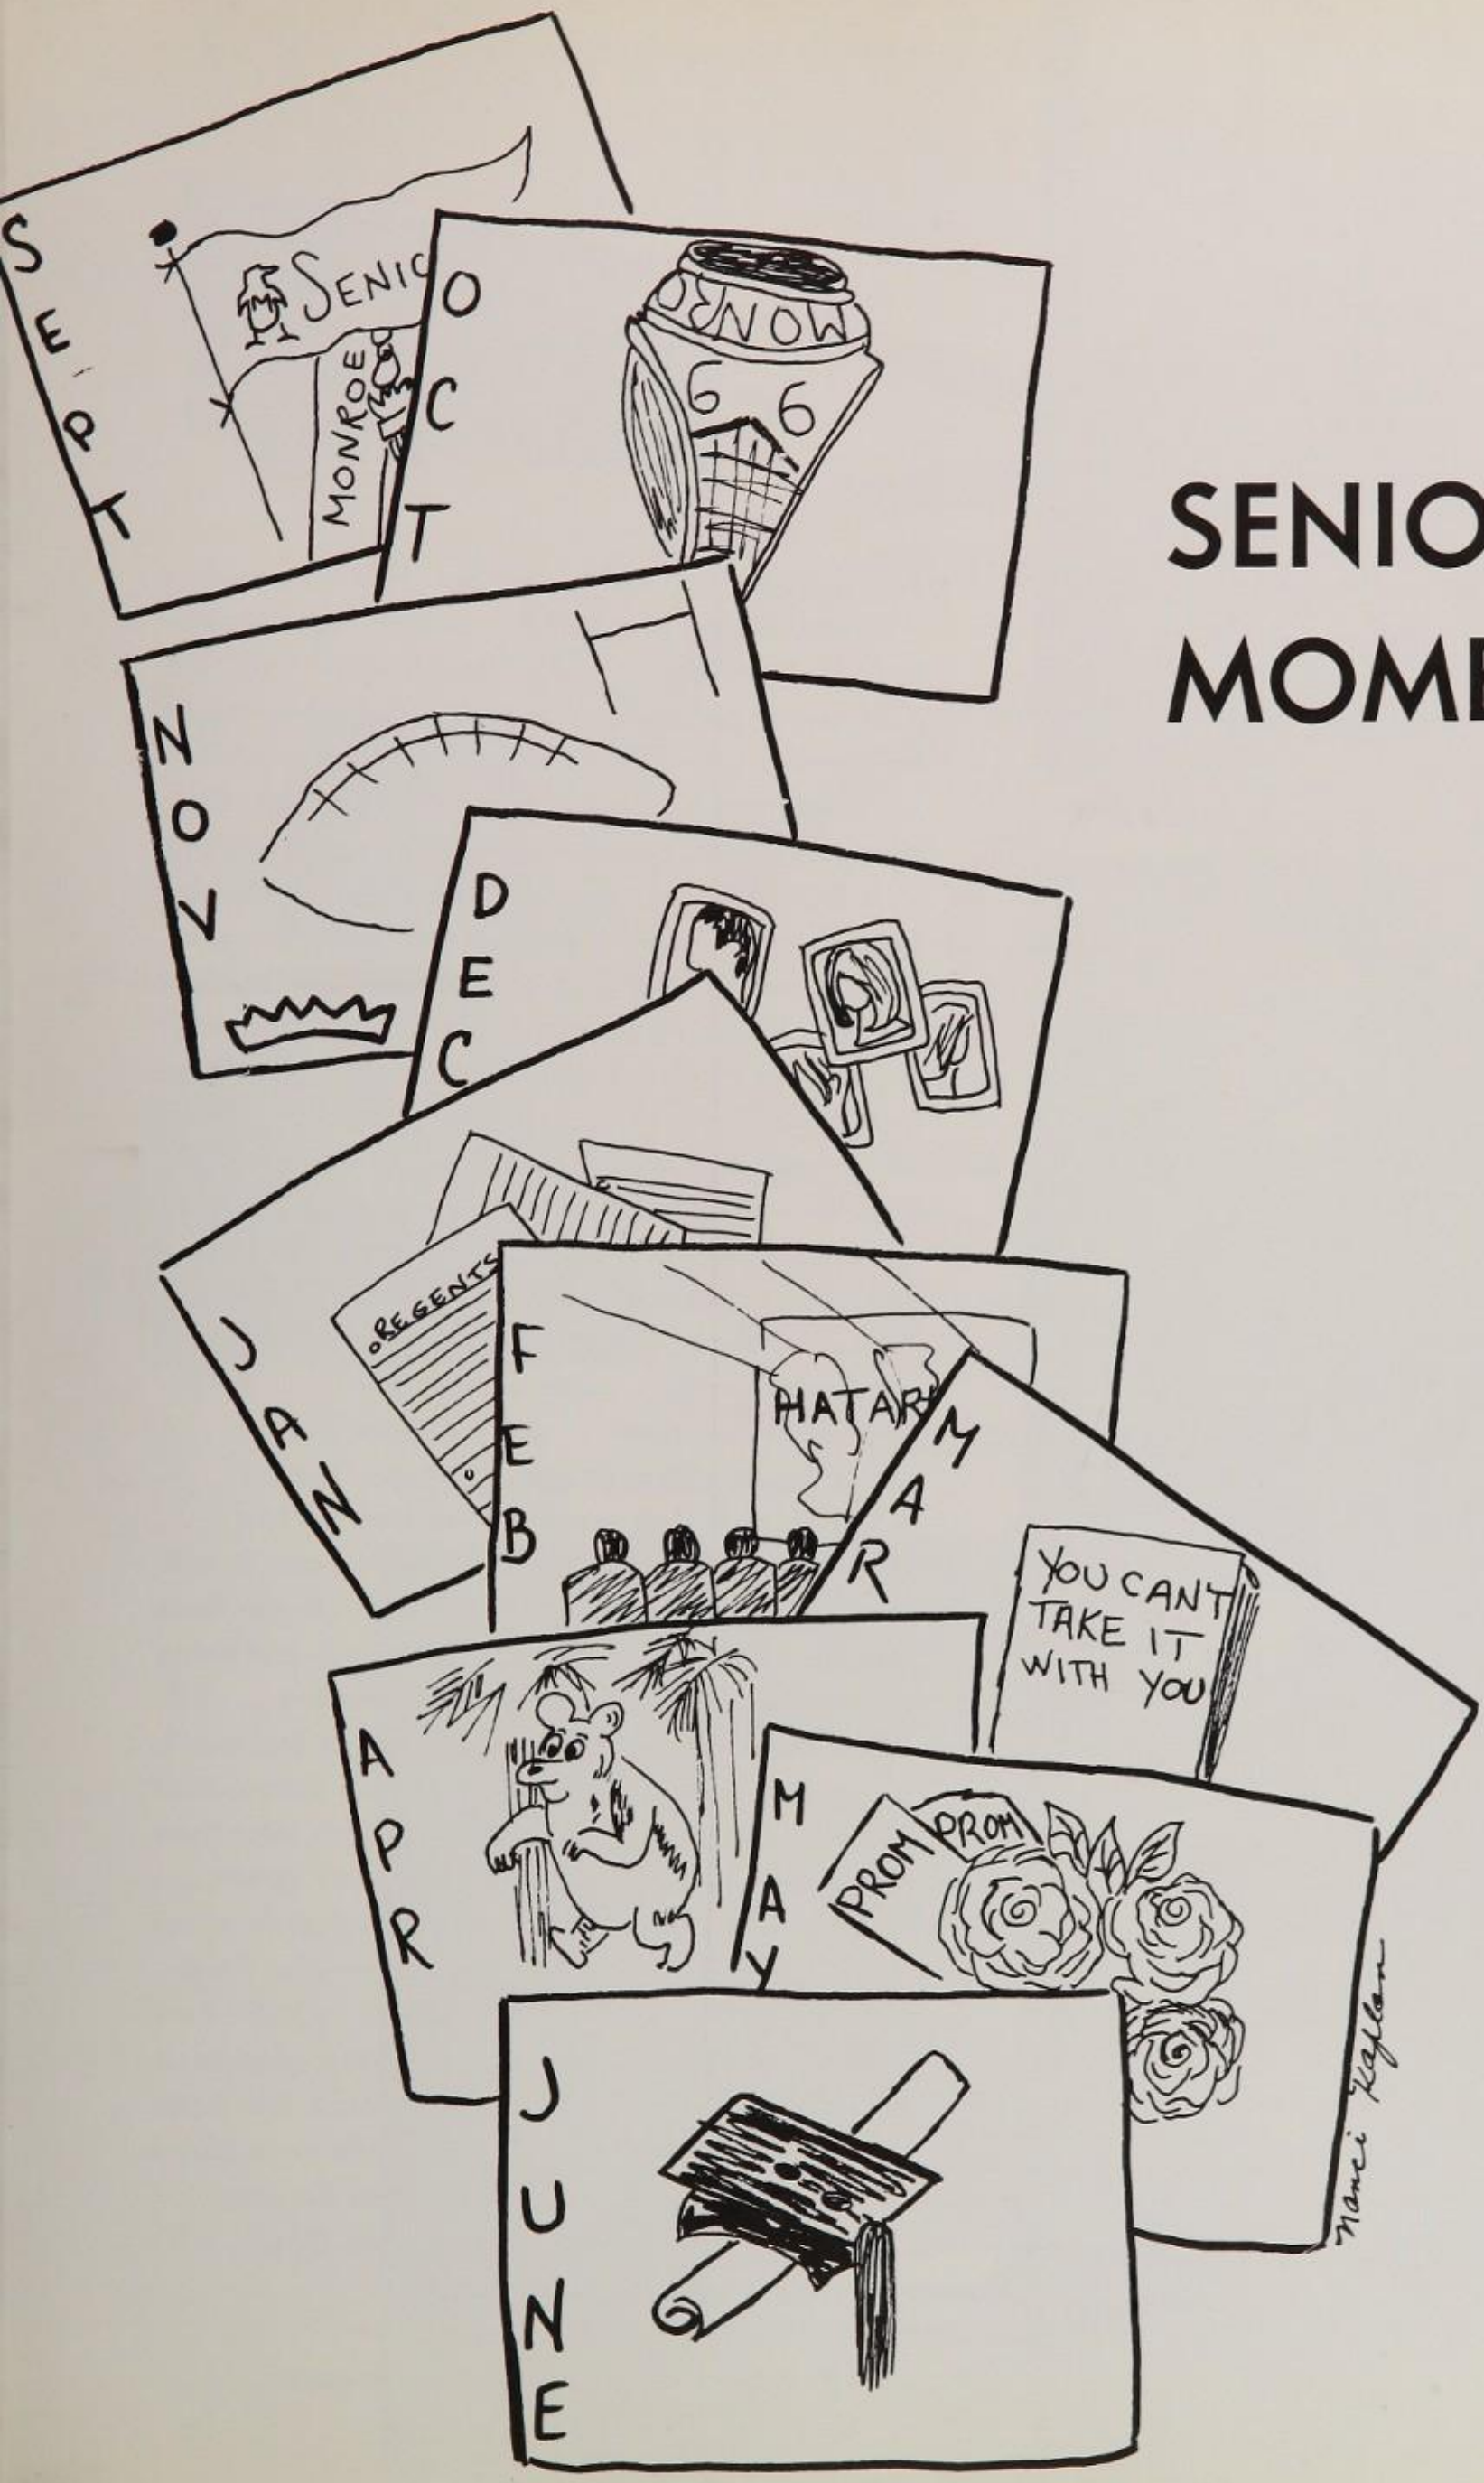
This was our senior year.



SENIOR MOMENTS

Eugene Feola—June Senior Class President

Patti Romane—Senior Class Treasurer

Senior Log

Senior year countdown begins—TEN—September —10 last months at J.M.H.S. . . . new title—"Aristocrats of Monroe" . . . new identification—red and gold senior pennants . . . NINE—October—James Monroe on T.V.—"It's Academic"—almost a winner . . . eager handing out of money for baubles, bangles, and beads, otherwise known as senior jewelry . . . EIGHT—November—an all wet event—Senior Swim Party . . . start of preening for yearbook photos . . . another Thanksgiving Day struggle against Clinton—it's (sigh!) in vain . . . and there is dancing in the land for it is Turkey Trot time . . . SEVEN—December—Senior-Faculty basketball game—plenty of "pows, zaps, and whams" being dispensed by teachers—well, you have to humor the old guys . . . Christmas vacation—need we say more? . . . SIX—January—work, work, work—finals and Regents are here . . . senior class is trimmed down—January graduates leave . . . intersession, ahh! . . . FIVE—February—new term . . more O hour periods . . . senior movie—Monroe goes African—"Hatari" . . . FOUR—March—lost weekend—cancel ski trip . . . Broadway in the Bronx—"You Can't Take it with You" by Drama Workshop . . . THREE—April—Bear Mountain trip—one outing not cancelled—just being postponed . . . Easter vacation—a pleasure . . . college returns—many unhappy returns of the month by city colleges . . . trip to Stratford, Connecticut for some Shakespearean comedy . . . it's later than you think—measurements for caps and gowns . . . TWO—May—only two more months to cut in or cut out . . . big social event of the season—the Prom—surprise!—it isn't being called off . . . ONE—June —last days of senior aristocracy . . . last glances at old J.M.H.S. . . . last chances to learn the Alma Mater . . . our Senior Day . . . just a little more blood and sweat for a couple of finals and Regents . . . but the ultimate reward—Graduation Day . . . it's BLAST-OFF ! ! !

Monroe's Birthday Party...

Every year James Monroe High School invites outstanding graduates to participate in the Hall of Fame ceremonies. The James Monroe High School Hall of Fame honors graduates who have distinguished themselves in some field of endeavor, from business to baseball, from stage to science.

This year's inductees were Dr. Leon Lederman, a distinguished Columbia University nuclear-physicist, and Dr. Edward Bloustein, president of Bennington College.

These men excelled in science and education respectively. They have, in common, however, the fact that they did achieve and excel in that which they set out to do. Many Monroe graduates of the past have been able to feel a similar sense of accomplishment. It is hoped that the graduates of 1966 will also achieve those goals they set for themselves and find lasting rewards in their future life.

Dr. Leon M. Lederman, Principal Oscar Dombrow, Dr. Edward J. Bloustein

Four years of time lived through in hope
from day to day, season to season,
years of tasks and trials,
small triumphs and ever-renewed challenges,
four years of challenges met,
sometimes with honor,
sometimes squeaking through,
but obstacles overcome,
leaving us stronger than before,
till now we know we were equal to this contest.
Time
the instrument of change
has seen us change.

MISS FREIBERG

A pretty face, a pretty smile,
To tell her from the students takes quite a while.

Alba Anaya—Innocence is one of her many virtues.
Gloria Bradley—" . . . but Miss Freiberg!"
Edward Brown—Blow Gabriel blow!!
Catherine Brunetto—Unchatty Cathy
Rosemary Caruso—You need not know how to cook, for many boys just like to look.
James Casanova—Class lover boy Ondray Cleveland—School drop-in Ann Cuccia—Our little Italian mouse.
Edith Deuber—Sweet as sugar, lots of fun, she has a smile for everyone.
Fred Dockery—Hickory, dickory, dockery
Gladys Figueroa—One in a million
Laura Figueroa—Never complains
Robert Gianatasio—Always smiling, always bright.
Makes you feel the day's just right.
Ellen Haber—Class intellect
Lionel Jackson—A promising student—always promising to do better!
Dennis Kelly—A real good guy who's kind of shy.
Barbara Kowal—Bronx girl with a Brooklyn accent.
Norma Maldonado—A pretty face this girl does only,
but only Joey has her phone.
Carmen Melendez—"Eddie's coming home Friday!!!"
Ramon Mendez—A real fine, fine boy!
Joaquin Morales—Connoisseur of all the fine arts.
Sharon Payne—Cute and sweet and can't be beat.
Richard Pedraza—Big time operator, small time switchboard.
Douglas Riddick—Here's a guy who'll sell you anything.
Lillian Rios—A nice girl with a quiet way.
Jeanette Rivera—One, two, three, four,
who do all the boys adore.
Robert Rivera—What do I care how tall I'll be,
as long as the world looks up to me.
Melvin Rodriquez—You can't take it with you,
but Mel will certainly try.
Yvette Rolle—Good things don't always come in small packages.
Melinda Shaw—Sugar and spice and all that's nice.
Millie Silva—Silva is just as precious as gold.
Olga Verdecia—Good things come in small packages.
Linda Verona—"Wherefor art thou, Linda?"

WASHINGTON HEIGHTS FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION

Under the Guaranty Loan Plan of the New York Higher Education Assistance Corporation, you may borrow what you need each year—up to $7500. for a complete college education. You make no payments as long as you are in school. After graduation, you start monthly repayments at only 3% annual interest—may have as much as 6 years to repay.

How to qualify for a low-cost student loan:

- Be a resident of New York State for at least one year.
- Be a high school graduate, or the equivalent, and furnish proof of scholastic ability.
- Have been accepted as a full-time student at, or are now attending an educational institution granting degrees, or offering a 2-year program to be credited toward a degree.
- Furnish proof of financial need.

A specialist at any one of our 5 convenient offices will be happy to give you complete details. Write or phone for further information.
